Do Justice Conference Workshops

White Supremacy Distorted the Biblical Narrative Workshop

Dr. Karen McKinney, Biblical Studies professor at Bethel University taught how the Anglo-Saxon Myth was born and how it impacted America's grand narrative.

Dr. McKinney dug deep into four Biblical distortions used to propagate white supremacy ideology, and the construction of Whiteness.

Plus Dr. McKinney offered actions steps for the oppressors and the oppressed.

Just Church Workshop

Pastor David Myles of New Hope Church and Christopher Brooks of MERGE Twin Cities spoke on the Biblical foundations for being a church for all peoples.

How we can be committed to fulfilling the Great Commission while also leading change in places of need, where the Lord has called us.

Myles opened with the Biblical mandate of why we are doing this for all people and Brooks finished with specific strategies for realizing this mandate.

What It Means to "Be In Christ" Workshop

Dr. Kenneth Young, a systematic theologian at UNWSP, presented a compelling workshop that took an anthropological and sociological approach to looking at how the body of Christ is made up.

And what the body of Christ looks like when it is functioning for all people.

Plus a summary of Bryan Stevenson's keynote addresses at the Do Justice Conference presented by Transform Minnesota on November 8, and An Evening with Bryan Stevenson later that evening at Christ Presbyterian Church.

Four Common Mistakes in Succession Planning

On November 15, Natalie Ackerman presented at our Succession Roadmapping training. There she shared the importance of making sure every person in your organization is prepared to transition to a place of greater leadership and responsibility when a leader is replaced.

Learn the four common mistakes in leadership succession planning.

Plus the top questions to ask yourself about your organization's succession plan. And the top questions to ask others when looking at their leadership potential.
